

SESSION DELAYED AS EFFORT TO AID LOW PAID IS STUDIED

HOUSE ASKS EXEMPTIONS

Man Says Low Paid County Employees Should Fare Same As State.

PROGRESS IS SLOW

Inconsistency Claimed As Solons Meet.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—Legislative wheels were clogged and Gov. George White's legislative program considerably delayed today when the House decided to rescind its action on the governor's bill reducing salaries and wages of state officials and employees.

The lower legislative branch acceded to the request of Representative E. R. King, Vinton-co Republican, that it reconsider the vote by which it passed this measure after exempting all employees receiving less than $1,000 a year and boosting the percentage of reductions of salaries and wages in excess of $2,000.

CITE INCONSISTENCY

King and other Republican members were joined by a number on the Democratic side in arguing that the House "was inconsistent" in exempting the small salaried state employees and failing to adopt a similar policy toward those in the counties throughout the state who likewise are paid less than $1,000 a year.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—The Ohio senate and house today had locked horns over methods for slashing salaries and wages of state officials and employees and of county election officials and employees. Indications were that only through the deliberations of joint conference committees can these differences between the two legislative branches be adjusted.

SENATE ADAMANT

The senate, however, displayed no tendency to follow the example set by the house. Leaders in the lower legislative branch predicted today that the house would stand pat and, in the event that the senate fails to concur in the exemption of these employees, they will demand the appointment of joint conferees on the part of the senate and house.

After the Governor's bill, cutting the compensation of state officials and employees had been amended so as to exempt those employees receiving less than $1,000 a year and increasing the slashes on salaries exceeding $2,000 a year, it passed the house by a vote of 113.

SUB IS MISSING

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 30.—The fate of a Soviet submarine which collided with a Danish steamer outside Kronstadt remained unknown today, following reports of the Soviet government to hush the accident.

The submarine supposedly sank after being struck by the steamer proceeding at full steam.

Russia has claimed large compensation.

SWANSON SEEKS JURY EVIDENCE

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Driving onward in his quest for evidence of criminal culpability, State's Attorney John A. Swanson indicated today that he is almost ready to present to a grand jury the story of the bursting of the $2,000,000,000 Insull utilities bubble.

While the prosecutor continued grilling former associates and employees of Samuel Insull, efforts were under way in federal court to recover $15,000,000 in assets of the bankrupt Insull utility investments corporation under whose wings a $6,000,000 stock underwriting syndicate was disclosed.

DIRT SLIDE FATAL

RELLAIRE, Sept. 30.—Trapped under a mountain of dirt, one man was dead and another was in serious condition today after a ditch caved in last night while the two were nearing the end of weeks of effort to salvage a gas main which they expected to sell for junk.

Nicholas Ferencik, 49, was killed by the cave-in and received three serious injuries. Three others escaped injury, having left the ditch only a short time before.

Three Survivors Of Lost Steamer Relate Horrors

Nevada Wrecked With Loss of 33 Lives; Only Three Persons Escape Death In Pacific Ocean; Report Ship Breaking In Three Pieces.

ST. PAUL ISLAND, Alaska, Sept. 30.—A tale of horror was recounted today by the three survivors of the ill-fated States Line freighter, Nevada, wrecked here from the Dollar liner President Madison.

The three survivors were reported in a critical condition from exposure aboard the President Madison, which went to the rescue of the freighter, which ran aground on Amatignak Island in the bleak north Pacific Tuesday night.

REPORT PASSENGERS

Walter Raymond, of Kentfield, Cal., was believed to be one of the passengers who was lost. There was an unconfirmed report that seven Chinese passengers were aboard the vessel and were unaccounted for, along with Portus B. Berry of Longview, Wash., who was taking a sea trip for his health.

Among the missing are: Alfred Bentham, third assistant engineer, of Hingham Center, Mass.; Henry Kopske, Kansas City, Mo.; and Robert E. Long, Harrisburg, Pa.; and Charles Jacobson, New York. A partial list of the missing showed that practically all were from the Pacific coast states.

"Survivors now too far gone from exposure to talk much," the President Madison radioed.

CLING TO ROCKS

The three sailors, battered by the icy surf and bruised against the jagged rocks to which they clung for 48 hours, told an incoherent story of the sea-tragedy.

The States line steamship offices said they had received reports the three rescued men were: Fritz DeWall, seaman, Lucenda De Canay, seaman, and James Thorsen, seaman.

"The radio operator must have stayed at his post while the ship was pounding to pieces," one of the survivors said.

"We were clinging to the rocks and did not see him leave the ship. He must have stayed in the radio room trying to get in communication with some ship to come to the rescue."

"We saw the captain and a third mate jump overboard but they did not get to shore."

"The seas were terrific. Mountainous waves battered the ship against the rocks and finally it broke in three pieces."

The President Madison, under Capt. R. J. Healey of San Francisco, raced 300 miles from mid-Pacific to aid the survivors of the Nevada.

"The ship is breaking up fast and is now in three pieces," the President Madison radioed. "The forecastle has been carried away from the rest of the ship and has been washed upon the beach."

M'NEAL DENIES BRIBE CHARGE; PROVIDES BAIL

Trial Date on Secret Indictment Not Yet Set by Judge Adkins.

BOND IS $1,000

To Appeal Conviction on Girl's Charge.

Newell McNeal, 50, of Williamsport, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Joseph W. Adkins, Thursday afternoon, on a charge of attempting to bribe a juror.

McNeal was secretly indicted by the September grand jury on information provided by Jennie Hott of Darbyville, who said the man told her that if she could influence the ballot of her mother, Mrs. Lillian Hott, on the jury in McNeal's trial for rape, there would be money in it for the elder Mrs. Hott.

McNeal then provided $1,000 bond for trial, the date of which has not been set.

APPEALS CONVICTION

Before leaving the courthouse Thursday afternoon McNeal arranged $2,000 appeal bond to carry his conviction for assault with intent to rape Margaret Pontius, 15, to the court of appeals. His bond for trial on the charge was $1,000 but was raised by Judge Adkins after sentence.

The court of appeals meets here on Nov. 2 and it is expected that the case will be submitted at that time. Judges of the court are Mauck, Middleton and Blosser.

FRIEND ALONG

A friend, Ernest Lynn of near Amanda, had brought the youth to Circleville but was innocent of the attempt to pass the checks. Police asserted. Lynn was found waiting in his automobile. He told police that Smith had promised him he would buy him gasoline and oil if he would bring him to this city.

Both checks found on the youth were dated on Sept. 24.

GOODYEAR GUILTY

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—Convicted last night of murdering his 27-year-old sweetheart, Mrs. Marie Legge, for "stepping out," William Goodyear, 36, today was urged by his friends to seek a new trial.

After deliberating six and one-half hours, a jury of seven women and five men found Goodyear guilty of first degree murder, but saved him from the electric chair with a recommendation for mercy, which makes life imprisonment in Ohio Penitentiary mandatory.

COP MURDERER TO SERVE LIFE

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 30.—Found guilty of killing a Springfield policeman, Sherman Thomas Clemens of Indianapolis today was to be taken to Ohio Penitentiary to begin a life term. A recommendation of mercy by the jury saved him from the electric chair.

HEIR SHOOTS HIS GUARDIAN

McArthur Boy Finds Stepfather Pulling Mother By Hair, Kills Him.

MCMARTHUR, Sept. 30.—A 16-year-old boy, shattered today under the oppressive memories of an alleged attack upon his mother, his inflamed indignation, a struggle, then a gunshot and the sight of his stepfather and guardian, John Lewis, 38, crumpling to the floor fatally wounded.

The boy, Paul Baynard Bay, reputed heir to a $50,000 farm estate, shot and killed his stepfather in his mother's home at Hamden last night when Lewis allegedly attacked his estranged wife, Mrs. Blanche Lewis, according to authorities.

Seizing a shotgun when he heard a struggle, the boy rushed to his mother's bedroom where he found Lewis attempting to drag his estranged wife from bed by her hair, according to the story told authorities.

Slain Cuban Senator

Following the assassination of Clemente Vazquez Bello (above), president of the Cuban Senate and close friend of the Cuban Senate and close friend of President Machado, Havana has been placed under military rule as a result of an outbreak of reprisals. The killing of Bello was followed by the slaying of three brothers, who were associated with the opposition party. The slain men are the brothers Gonzalo, Guillermo and Leopoldo Freyre de Andrade. All the killings were carried out with sub-machine guns in a manner reminiscent of American gangster methods.

PRICE INDEX IN STATE UP

Upward Movement Observed First Time Since August, 1929, O. S. U. Says.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—An upward movement occurred during August in Ohio wholesale grocery price index for the first time since October, 1929, the bureau of business research at Ohio State University reported today.

The increase in the price index was the outstanding factor for August, the report shows. Total wholesale grocery sales for August were 1.4 per cent greater than in July, although daily averages were six per cent lower because August had two more business days.

The five-year average gain in August from July was three per cent.

Cash sales for August stood at 14.6 per cent and charge sales at 85.4 percent, the ratio remaining unchanged from July. Sales reports were most favorable from the northwest Ohio district and least favorable in the southwest.

Retail trade in Ohio department and dry goods stores during August made its greatest improvement in the southwest district, according to the report. Total retail trade in Ohio was up 1.4 per cent.

INGALLS TICKETS BEING DISPENSED

Tickets for the David S. Ingalls luncheon at the Boggis Hotel next Tuesday can be obtained from C. A. Weldon or from George Bentley at Republican party headquarters, W. Main-st., it was announced Friday.

BAKER TO SPEAK AT CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, Sept. 30.—Concluding a series of nine speeches at nine group meetings of Ohio bankers in many cities, Robert Q. Baker of Coshocton president of the Ohio Bankers' Association, will address bankers from several Ohio counties here tonight.

FRENCH RELATES RADIO'S WONDERS IN ADDRESS HERE

Seventy-five men, including Roosevelt and their wives and guests, heard a splendid address at the Boggis Hotel Thursday evening by Bob French, Glenside, Pa., the Columbus Dispatch.

French, talking in the same voice that he does over the radio, told of some of the facilities of the radio and spent his entire time discussing the wonders of the world as he perceived it. He told of the first radio broadcast in one city calling attention for assistance and recalled the Titanic disaster when the Carpa was summoned through the sinker ship's radio. The use of the radio spread until some person decided that radio would be an excellent thing to provide entertainment, the speaker

EXHIBITS IN SEWAGE PLANT CASE SUBMITTED TO JUDGE J. W. ADKINS

Board of Elections Seeks Opinion of Common Pleas Court.

TO ACT ON NAMES

Board Has Previously Ruled Shortage.

The fate of the petition for referendum on a proposed bond issue for $25,000 for a sewage disposal plant is now in the hands of Judge Joseph W. Adkins. All the exhibits in the case have been filed in common pleas court by Harry E. Weill, through E. L. Crist, prosecuting attorney, advisor for the Board of Elections.

The election board is asking the court to determine the sufficiency or insufficiency of signatures on petitions filed by Vatties and John Courtwright and H. Scott Eagleson who seek a vote of the city on the bond issue.

The petitioners filed formal protest with the election board after it had ruled the names insufficient to be placed on the ballot. Two hundred and eighty-seven names are needed and, although the petitioners have 370 names, a number that signed the first petitions ask that their names be stricken off.

NATION'S OLDEST "LIFER" IS DEAD

BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Sept. 30.—Jesse Pomeroy, the country's oldest "lifer," died at Bridgewater state hospital today.

The notorious prisoner, who was to have celebrated his 73rd birthday on November 29, had spent 56 years in prison of which 38 were passed in solitary confinement.

Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

Pomeroy was sentenced to life imprisonment for the torture murder of a boy in 1876.

On August 1, 1929, he was transferred to the state hospital at that time, he had made his first ride in an automobile.

HEALTH GROUP SELECTS TWO

Clark and Eagleson Fill Vacancies in County Public Health League.

Fred C. Clark and J. O. Eagleson were chosen, Thursday afternoon, to succeed Miss Marie Robertson and Miss Helen Bartholomew as members of the executive committee of the Pickaway-co Public Health league. Both Miss Robertson and Miss Bartholomew have left the city.

Mr. Eagleson will become secretary of the organization. It was decided at the meeting to hold this year's seal sale for health work after conferring with Dr. D. C. Beale, county health commissioner, and Miss Clara Southard, social worker of the Benevolent association.

A meeting will be held in the near future to which various city and county organization leaders will be asked. Reports of the league's work will be given at that time.

Mrs. W. I. Spangler of Tarleton, and Miss Fama Warner of Ashville R. F. D. 1, have been retained for another year on the executive committee as their terms have expired.

TARIFF SCORED BY ROOSEVELT

Democrat Now Turns to Wisconsin After Enthusiastic Iowa Meeting.

ENROUTE IN WISCONSIN WITH GOV. ROOSEVELT, Sept. 30.—From the grain and cattle belt, where he vigorously assailed President Hoover's policies on agricultural relief and tariff, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried his campaign for the presidency into Wisconsin today.

Here he found an involved political situation, resulting from the defeat of the LaFollette Progressive wing of the Republican party, which may rebound mightily to Democratic advantage in November.

The Democratic nominee was informed by state leaders who boarded his train this morning that personally insurgent Wisconsin is his this year.

G. O. P. TRADITIONALLY

They are hopeful, and some of them are even confident, of carrying the Democratic state ticket along, although it has been many years since the Badger state has seen a Democratic administration. In fact, no Democratic Governor has sat in the executive mansion in Madison since George W. Peck wrote "Peck's Bad Boy" there many years ago. There has been as yet no announcement as to what the defeated LaFollette insurgents are going to do in this year's election.

Gov. Roosevelt entered Wisconsin after a night journey through Iowa, marked by one of the greatest receptions he has had on his western trip. This was a Sioux City, where nearly 40,000 people jammed the ball park to hear him deliver a slashing attack on Republican tariff and agricultural policies and on the Hoover administration.

Iowa, once a stronghold of traditional Republicanism that has been abandoned in recent years, has been almost enough to give hope of carrying them. Both states have given their electoral votes to Democrats only once in many years. This was in 1912, the year of the great Republican split. Ever in the Wilson victory of 1916 they stayed steadfast to their Republican moorings.

TWO SEEK JOB AS PICKAWAY'S GAME OFFICER

Francis Says He Has Been Reappointed With Salary by State Leader.

DAVIDSON ON JOB

Conflict Between Sportsmen, Party Looming.

Just who Pickaway-co's official conservation officer is, is a matter stirring Democratic party leaders and members of the Pickaway-co Sportsman's and Farmer's Protective association. Party leaders say it is James Davidson, W. Franklin-st., and in another health sportsman assert it is Clarence Francis, who is now living at Hayesville.

Two weeks ago it was announced that Davidson had been appointed to the job, which pays $1,800 a year. A few days later Francis said that he had lost his job as paid conservationist, but was employed as a "card man," being paid so much for each arrest.

REPORTS RE-EMPLOYMENT

Friday morning Francis declared that he had received notification from W. H. Reinhardt, conservation commissioner, that he is to again be a salaried game protector. When asked if his re-appointment meant that the county would have two game protectors, Francis replied: "I guess so."

He went further to say that he had never relinquished his status as game protector although they were to have ended Sept. 30.

LEIST IN DENIAL

C. A. Leist, leader of Pickaway-co Democrats, denied that Francis had been re-appointed to the job. He said that in a conversation with Henry Brunner, state Democratic leader, Brunner had promised his co-operation to the county executive committee which supported Davidson for the job. Brunner said that Francis would not be hired as a salaried game protector.

Just what's what and who's who is to be determined with Davidson receiving the support of the party and Francis of the sportsman's group. It is certain that Pickaway-co is not going to use two game protectors each getting $1,800 a year as salary. A showdown is expected soon.

MRS. JULIAN DIES

REMAIN IN WAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—On the eve of the publication of the League of Nations report on Japan's military invasion of Manchuria, the navy department today announced the United States scouting force will remain in Pacific for another year.

REFUSE REQUEST

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—Riding roughshod over feeble opposition the Republican majority in the state's House of Representatives today rejected a proposal that Gov. George White be represented in the contemplated legislative investigation into highway assessments.

G. O. P. GATHERS

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—Former President Calvin Coolidge's call to "put on a fighting campaign for the election of President Hoover and our Massachusetts state ticket" echoed today as prominent Republicans assembled for the annual G. O. P. state convention.

The campaign in Massachusetts was launched last night at a Republican club banquet.

MRS. VARE WINS

SALEM COUNTRY CLUB, West Peabody, Mass., Sept. 30.—The last of the foreign threats pounding at the door of the United States women's golf championship was rudely pushed aside today when Mrs. Clemens Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, trounced Miss Ada MacKenzie, of Toronto, 5 and 4.

BIRTHS

Born to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Waites of E. Mill-st., Friday, Sept. 30, a son.

NATION'S OLDEST "LIFER" IS DEAD

BRIDGEWATER, Mass., Sept. 30.—Jesse Pomeroy, the county's oldest "lifer," died at Bridgewater state hospital today.

The notorious prisoner, who was to have celebrated his 73rd birthday on November 29, had spent 56 years in prison of which 35 were passed in solitary confinement. Heart disease was given as the cause of death.

Pomeroy was sentenced to life imprisonment for the torture murder of a boy in 1876.

On August 1, 1929, he was transferred to the state hospital at that time, he had made his first ride in an automobile.

HEALTH GROUP SELECTS TWO

Clark and Eagleson Fill Vacancies In County Public Health League.

Fred C. Clark and J. O. Eagleson were chosen, Thursday afternoon, to succeed Miss Marie Robertson and Miss Helen Bartholomew as members of the executive committee of the Pickaway-co Public Health league. Both Miss Robertson and Miss Bartholomew have left the city.

Mr. Eagleson will become secretary of the organization. It was decided at the meeting to hold this year's seal sale for health work after conferring with Dr. D. C. Beale, county health commissioner, and Miss Clara Southward, social worker of the Benevolent association.

A meeting will be held in the near future to which various city and county organization leaders will be asked. Reports of the league's work will be given at that time.

Mrs. W. I. Spangler of Turlington, and Miss Farnham Warner of Ashville R. F. D. 1, have been retained for another year on the executive committee as their terms have expired.

TARIFF SCORED BY ROOSEVELT

Democrat Now Turns to Wisconsin After Enthusiastic Iowa Meeting.

ENROUTE IN WISCONSIN WITH GOV. ROOSEVELT, Sept. 30.—From the grain and cattle belt, where he vigorously assailed President Hoover's policies on agricultural relief and tariff, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt carried his campaign for the presidency into Wisconsin today.

Here he found an involved political situation, resulting from the defeat of the LaFollette Progressive wing of the Republican party, which may rebound mightily to Democratic advantage in November.

The Democratic nominee was informed by state leaders who boarded his train this morning that perennially insurgent Wisconsin is his this year.

G. O. P. TRADITIONALLY

They are hopeful, and some of them are even confident, of carrying the Democratic state ticket along, although it has been many years since the Badger state has seen a Democratic administration. In fact, no Democratic Governor has sat in the executive mansion in Madison since George W. Peck wrote "Peck's Bad Boy" there many years ago. There has been as yet no announcement as to what the defeated LaFollette insurgents are going to do in this year's election.

Gov. Roosevelt entered Wisconsin after a night journey through Iowa, marked by one of the greatest receptions he has had on his western trip. This was a Sioux City, where nearly 40,000 people jammed the ball park to hear him deliver a slashing attack on Republican tariff and agricultural policies under the Hoover administration.

Iowa, like Wisconsin, is so traditionally Republican that few Democrats in recent years have been ambitious enough to even hope of carrying them. Both states have given their electoral votes to Democrats only once in many years. This was in 1912, the year of the great Republican split. Even in the Wilson victory of 1916 they stayed steadfast to their Republican moorings.

TWO SEEK JOB AS PICKAWAY'S GAME OFFICER

Francis Says He Has Been Reappointed With Salary by State Leader.

DAVIDSON ON JOB

Conflict Between Sportsmen, Party Looming.

Just who Pickaway-co's official conservation officer is, is a matter stirring Democratic party leaders and members of the Pickaway-co Sportsman's and Farmer's Protective association. Party leaders say it is James Davidson, W. Franklin-st., and in another breath sportsmen assert it is Clarence Francis, who is now living at Hayesville.

Two weeks ago it was announced that Davidson had been appointed to the job, which pays $1,800 a year. A few days later Francis said that he had lost his job as paid conservationist but was employed as a "card" man, being paid so much for each arrest.

REPORTS RE-EMPLOYMENT

Friday morning Francis declared that he had received notification from W. H. Reinhart, conservation commissioner, that he is to again be a salaried game protector. When asked if his re-employment meant that the county would have two salaried game protectors Francis replied, "I guess so."

He went further to say that he had never relinquished his duties as game protector although they were to have ended Sept. 30.

LEIST IN DENIAL

C. A. Leist, leader of Pickaway-co Democrats, denied that Francis had been re-appointed to the post. He said that in a conversation with Henry Brunner, state Democratic leader, Brunner had promised his cooperation to the county executive committee which supported Davidson for the job. Brunner said that Francis would not be hired as a salaried game protector.

Just what's what and who's who is to be determined with Davidson receiving the support of the party and Francis of the sportsman's group. It is certain that Pickaway-co is not going to use two game protectors each getting $1,800 a year as salary. A showdown is expected soon.

MRS. JULIAN DIES

Mrs. Emma Jane Julian, aged 51 died at her home in Saltcreek-twp Thursday at 5 p. m. of cancer.

She leaves her husband, Harvey L. Julian, two daughters and a son. Funeral services will be Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the Tarlton M. E. church with interment in the Tarlton cemetery by H. E. Deffenbaugh.

FORD IS STOLEN

The Ford roadster belonging to Frank Casey, Pickaway Country club golf professional, was stolen from its parking place in Columbus Thursday afternoon. The car had been driven there by Mrs. Casey who left it for 30 minutes. When she returned the car was gone.

It carried license plates No. H-4069 and has a cracked windshield.

DONAHEY OPPOSES GOVERNMENT AID

WASHINGTON C. H., Sept. 30.—Former Governor Vic Donahey is seriously opposed to expenditures of governmental funds for relief purposes.

Calling such expenditures a "snare and a sham," Donahey today had warned that "for each unemployed person aided now by such a plan, two will be unemployed a little later."

SEYMOUR FINED $100

William Seymour of Millport, was fined $100 and costs and committed to the county jail until fine and costs are paid when he pleaded guilty to illegal possession of liquor before Judge Joseph W. Adkins.

Seymour was arrested by federal officers.

TEAMS MOVE WEST; CUBS TO USE ROOT

By DAVIS J. WASH
I. N. S. Sports Writer

EN ROUTE TO CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—They're shipping the body west today, in respectful silence and with heads bowed down in grief. Sorrowing friends stand about in mute suffering, not to be comforted by good deeds and kind words. A deep, poignant hush pervades all. In fact, every detail seems to be taken care of in connection with the obsequies, except the identity of the corpse, and here one of those minor misunderstandings has cropped up to complicate the situation and spoil the train ride.

NOT DEAD YET

That is, sixty thousand people who saw the second game of the world series back in New York yesterday agree that the body belongs to the Chicago Cubs, champions of the National League. Whereas, this simply cannot be, because the Cubs say they aren't dead yet, I've always found that when a man says he isn't dead, he usually is not.

However, this may be another of my boyish mistakes, so we'll pass rapidly on from that point to the known and accepted facts which are, briefly, these:

The New York Yankees, champions of the American League, won the first game of the world series on Wednesday by a score of 12 to 6, beating Guy Bush, the first Cub ace. They won the second game of the world series yesterday by a score of 5 to 2, beating Lon Warneke, the second Cub ace. They may or may not win the third game of the series in Chicago tomorrow, beating other Cub aces, but either way it looks very logical that soon or late they must win the necessary two out of the next five games and so take charge of the world's championship in baseball for the season of 1932.

This seemed inevitable after watching the Yankees apparently do pretty much as they wished in the two New York games. In the first of these, the Cubs played very badly and lost. In the second, the difference didn't seem to be important. Anyhow, the Cubs played well and lost.

Varsities Labor For Title Tilts

International News Service

Ohio gridiron camps became beehives of bustling activity today in preparation for the coming week-end of football when the 1932 season will get underway in full blast as many eleven make their annual debut.

With last week's "set-ups" and one "upset" tilt serving only to whet their appetites much as the preliminaries at a championship fight, the followers of America's greatest collegiate sport will be served several choice morsels on the chalk-marked platter.

Three Buckeye conference teams will take on Big Ten opponents, Ohio Wesleyan meeting Ohio State, Miami journeying to Illinois' stronghold and Ohio University invading the fair of Indiana.

SEVERAL GOOD GAMES

The Wittenberg-John Carroll, Denison-Western Reserve, Georgetown-Cincinnati and Wooster-Ashtabula clashes also will be well worth the admission prices.

Incidentally, these fans who have been crying for on Ohio State-Ohio University struggle for the past four years will be afforded a chance to make paper comparisons, Ohio U meeting Indiana this week and Ohio State meeting the same Western Conference squad the following Saturday. However, such comparisons always must recognize several contributing factors and as a result cannot always be accurate.

Reports from the training camps follow:
Columbus—Coach Sam Willaman sent his scarlet and gray huskies through two stiff workouts giving them several new plays to digest and stressing passing and punting. Curious on-lookers were ousted from the practice session.

RED RUFFING
Rufus The Red Ruffing, although unimpaired considerably, lasted through the game to defeat the Cubs and gained his first series victory.

Delaware—The injury jinx is stalking Ohio Wesleyan. Bobby Given, backfield threat, is for the season and further casualties include Johnny Raugh, guard Harry Barber and Bill Mussum, tackle and Joe Winkelman and Walter Thomas, ends. All are varsity veterans.

PEDEN DISSATISFIED

Athens—Coach Don Peden sent his Ohio U squad through nearly two hours of scrimmage against a strong freshman team. Peden apparently was far from impressed by Ohio's 19 to 0 victory over Rio Grande and is trying to develop offensive power.

Westerville—Secret drills are in order here in preparation for Otterbein's coming tilt with Oberlin. Short, out for the season, has been replaced in the backfield with Holland.

Tiffin—Heidelberg's squad was put through intensive signal and light scrimmage paces on a rain-soaked field. The homeguard will meet Findlay in the first game of their season Saturday.

Alliance—Mt. Union's eleven, preparing for its clash with Bowling Green, was sent through punting drills yesterday. Allen, did most of the kicking though Gligor, quarterback, is being groomed to step into Allen's shoes if the need arises.

SEEKING REVENGE

New Concord—Coach Bill Lange put his team through the longest workout of the year, three hours of tackling, blocking and running. Defeated unexpectedly by Waynesburg Saturday, Muskingum, will try to avenge itself against Ohio State Reserves this week-end.

Granville—Charles Campbell, Denison's star punter, was hurt in scrimmage and may be on the sideline for two weeks. The squad scrimmaged for an hour in the rain yesterday.

BENTON FAVORED

NEWARK, N. J. Sept. 30
Rube Benton, the veteran towncrier with the New York Giants was Minneapolis' 33rd pitching choice today as the American Association championship faced Newark leaders in the International League in the third game of the series' little series. Back to back were one game.
Pete Jablonowski was expected to pitch for Newark.
After this afternoon's game the Cubs will leave for Minneapolis to continue the series.

KING NAMES U. S. SURGEON

LONDON
The British Surgeon General has been named to one of the "honor" of British surgical work. It was officially announced that George "has been graciously pleased" to appoint the appointment of James R. R. Learmonth, Associate Professor of Neurologic Surgery in the University of Minnesota, to Regius Professor of Surgery in the University of Aberdeen, Scotland.

'IRISH' STARS ON CARDINAL "PRO" SQUAD

Moynihan, Nash and Dahman
Play and Chevigny Coaches
Chicago Collegians.

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 29.

Twenty Chicago Cardinals who wrote football history in flaming newspaper headlines in college days and who are continuing to write it in the National Football League will match brain and brawn against the Portsmouth Spartans at Universal Stadium here Sunday. The tilt is clocked to start at 3 p. m.

CHEVIGNY COACHES

It's plain though, that the Chicagoans have Patsy Clark doing a lot of thinking. Although having enough over Sunday's 7 to 0 victory over the New York Giants the Cardinals have a whole bagful of tricks which have kept them in the League's first division for the past two seasons and may carry them to the top rung in 1933. Coached by Jack Chevigny, former Notre Dame star, whom "Doc" Jones signed at a fancy figure, Chicago is the only team in the league using the Knute Rockne system of play exclusively. Chevigny gathered his players from the four corners of the continent gave some 50 odd of them a chance to show what they had in three practice games and is now ready for his 1932 try at National League honors with a squad pared down to 20. It includes three former Rockne coached pals from Notre Dame, Big Tim Moynihan, Joe Nash and Bucky Dahman.

In the Red Bird backfield Chevigny probably will start Homer Risk, Peters and Holm. From Peters has the trustiest drop kicking toe in the league and still holds the world's collegiate record for most goals in one game. Playing under Zupke at Illinois, Frosty booted 18 out of 21 between the uprights in addition to averaging 57 yards on his punts the same day. Holm is none other than "Bonny" Alabama whose choice for All-American fullback in 1930 was unchanged in higher circles. At the Creighton and Rogge are two Cardinal veterans who will vie for honors with McKain, Ebding and Mitchell. Portsmouth's prize trio Simas, and Stennett, of St. Mary's, Rose, McLean, Moore and Kiesling at 245 pounds heads the list in avoirdupois. The others taper off down to a mere 200.

LAW PERMITS MAN TO KIDNAP OWN WIFE

DENVER—Denver police recently discovered that there was no law in Colorado to prevent a man kidnapping his own wife.
Mrs. E. C. Carter reported to police that Emmett L. Smiley had driven away with his daughter, Mrs. Smiley, despite the latter's vigorous protests. Smiley and his wife had been estranged for four months.
Police learned they were powerless to interfere.

Smiley brought his wife to her mother's home three hours later. Mrs. Smiley said that her husband had yielded to her tearful pleading to be returned to her mother's home after he had driven 35 miles on the road to Watkins, Colo. where his relatives live.

King and Ex-King at Ringside

Among the spectators that thronged the Garden Bowl, at Long Island City, and saw Max Schmeling, German heavyweight score an eight-round technical knock-out over Mickey Walker, were the two notable ring figures shown here. At top is the familiar Jack Demos, former champion, who was in the company of two distinguished beauties, Irene and Ruth George. Lower photo shows Champion Jack Sharkey with his wife. The Boston sailor had more than usual interest in the proceedings as he will probably meet the winner in a return bout for the title.

Circleville golfers lost their second match of the season at Washington C. H. Wednesday afternoon by a score of 36 1-2 to 17 1-2.

Statistics show that Circleville's 18 players averaged 100.5 on 18 holes while Washington C. H.'s team averaged 96.6.

The best two scores of the day were recorded by Frank Casey, local professional, who won his match from Jack Graham, Washington pro, by carding a 74. Mack Mader had 82 for the next best local score.

WILLIAMSPORT

F. E. Jennings of Columbus and formerly of Williamsport, was a visitor here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Schwarz and son Paul of Columbus spent the week-end with his father, Andrew Schwarz and Mrs. Schwarz.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Edge of Washington C. H. were Williamsport visitors Monday afternoon.

The Hamman families were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamman Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stewart has as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Cross of Columbus.

Mrs. Barbara Cook and Earl Cook spent Sunday in Chillicothe. Mrs. Thomas B. Gephart very pleasantly entertained her bridge club Tuesday afternoon.

Fall flowers in various color added charm to the occasion.

Following five rounds of play a tempting lunch was served at four tables.

When scores were counted, Mrs. Lee Luellen received the trophy for high, while Mrs. R. V. Hamman was presented the low score prize.

One must admit that those Iowa farm strikers stick to their principles. They chose to be exclusionists when the country checked immigration and now they must be exclusionists toward competitive farm products for which there are not enough mouths.

RADIO WONDERS

the progress of the case.
The speaker pointed out that radio stations controlled by the large newspapers of the east so far surpassed the reports of the two systems that it was only a short time before they discontinued broadcasting. The vast array of news gatherers on the payroll of the newspapers provided the difference, Mr. French declared.

He touched upon some of his experiences in broadcasting, then turned to the much-feared "Radio Rumor", which he said is usually caused by back-fence conversation. He recalled a broadcast of his where one woman probably busy in the kitchen at lunch time, mistook a statement he had made then went to the backfence and told Mrs. Smith about it. The latter passed it on until a large number of persons had been given the wrong conception of the statement. He explained the "Radio Rumor" of the suicide of Betty Gow at the time of the Lindbergh kidnapping. "The report was started," Mr. French said, "by an operator on brokerage lines from the east. During a lull in business the operators pass messages back and forth over their lines. One operator in an eastern city reported over the wire that he had heard Betty Gow had suicided. The report went over the entire nation's brokerage lines and gradually worked out into the streets. Many persons wondered why the newspapers did not carry the story, but it didn't take me long to inform my listeners at noon that there was no truth in the suicide report."

The Four Magic Highwaymen, broadcasting male quartet which was to have been on the program was unable to make the trip because of a date to go on the air but Rotarians and their guests were informed the men would come at a later date.

The program was in charge of Dr. G. D. Phillips. A meeting will be held next week, Pumpkin Show week, but no program is planned. W. F. Celler, chairman of the committee, reported.

tail sales in southwestern Ohio during August increased 13 percent from July with the improvement in southeastern Ohio less than one percent. The northeast and northwest districts reported declines.

An increase of 22 percent in retail trade was reported in the state as a whole, but the change is due to the two more business days in August than in July. Total dollar sales for the January-August period this year were 27.1 percent under those of the same period in 1931, but price changes contributed to this decline, the report explains.

SESSION DELAYED

to 1 and was sent to the senate which lost no time in placing it in the hands of the senate finance committee.

CALL ROHE BILL

The senate then called up the Rohe bill, embodying the recommendations of the senate economy committee substituted the Governor's plan for reducing salaries of state officials and employees, and then sent the bill back to the senate finance committee for further consideration before it is again called up on the question of passage.

The Governor's proposal is to reduce wages up to, and including, $1,000 five per cent, the next $4,000, or any part thereof, 10 per cent, and all in excess of $5,000, would be cut 15 per cent.

The senate economy committee's plan is to cut the first $1,000, or less, five per cent, the second $1,000, 10 per cent and then advance 2 1/2 per cent on each succeeding thousand, or fractions thereof.

The house substituted for the Governor's plan the proposal that the first $1,000 be reduced five per cent, the second $1,000 be lowered 10 per cent, the third $1,000 be reduced 13 per cent, the fourth $1,000 be cut 16 per cent and that three per cent be added to the reduction percentage for each succeeding $1,000.

It was claimed that despite its exemption of all employees receiving less than $1,000, this plan would yield the state about $100,000 a year more than would the Governor's plan.

Under the present house plan, the highest salary paid by the state—$133,500 a year to President George W. Rightmire, Ohio State University, would be cut to $10,040, that of Gov. George White would be reduced from $10,000 to $7,970, while the 159 employees receiving $2,000 would be cut to $1,850, the 270 receiving $3,000 to $2,720; the 46 receiving $4,000 to $3,560 and the 31 receiving $5,000 to $4,370.

Not content with taking issue with the house on the question of cutting salaries of state officials, the senate shunted to its elections committee the Governor's bill which, applying the 5-10-15 per cent reduction plan to county election officials, passed the house by a vote of 113 to 0.

By a vote of 15 to 7, the senate then proceeded to pass the bill applying to election board members and employees the senate economy committee plan of percentage reductions.

It seemed assured that when the bill reaches the house today sufficient opposition to it will develop to send it to a joint conference committee.

BOTH UNANIMOUS

Both the senate and house, however, were unanimous in their approval of the Governor's bill cutting the compensation of county elective officials on the 10-15 per cent basis. This bill now goes to the governor and is the first to pass the gauntlet in both legislative branches. It is estimated to save about $245,000 a year.

The house bill cutting salaries of state officials and employees is estimated to save about $2,000,000 annually, compared with a yearly saving of approximately $100,000 in excess of the Governor's plan.

After passing the house by a vote of 108 to 0, the Governor's bill setting up the machinery by the state for the distribution to cities and other political subdivisions poor relief funds loaned by the federal reconstruction finance corporations, was in the hands of the senate judiciary committee today.

A joint resolution pending before the senate today, on the question of adoption, requests judges and other officials not affected by such salary-cutting legislation as may be enacted at the present session to voluntarily accept the same rate of reduction as may be contained in such legislation.

This resolution was recommended by both the Governor and the senate economy committee.

RED RUFFING

Rufus the Red Ruffing, although pummeled considerably, lasted through the game to defeat the Cubs and gained his first series victory.

Delaware—The injury jinx is stalking Ohio Wesleyan. Bobby Given, backfield threat, is for the season and further casualties included Johnny Raugh, guard, Harry Barber and Bill Mussum, tackles, and Joe Winkelman and Walter Thomas, ends. All are varsity veterans.

PEDEN DISSATISFIED
Athens—Coach Don Peden sent his Ohio U squad through nearly two hours of scrimmage against a strong freshman team. Peden apparently was far from impressed by Ohio's 19 to 0 victory over Rio Grande and is trying to develop offensive power.

Westerville—Secret drills are in order here in preparation for Otterbein's coming tilt with Oberlin. Short, out for the season, has been replaced in the backfield with Holland.

Tiffin—Heidelberg's squad was put through intensive signal and light scrimmage paces on a rain-soaked field. The homeguard will meet Findlay in the first game of their season Saturday.

Alliance—Mt. Union's eleven, preparing for its clash with Bowling Green, was sent through punting drills yesterday. Allen did most of the kicking though Gligor, quarterback, is being groomed to step into Allen's shoes if the need arises.

SEEKING REVENGE

New Concord—Coach Bill Lange put his team through the longest workout of the year, three hours of tackling, blocking and running. Defeated unexpectedly by Waynesburg Saturday, Muskingum will try to avenge itself against Ohio State Reserves this week-end.

Granville—Charles Campbell, Denison's star punter, was hurt in scrimmage and may be on the sideline for two weeks. The squad scrimmaged for an hour in the rain yesterday.

CINCINNATI—COACH JOE MEYER

preparing for the clash with the Centre (CQ) college eleven, apparently will depend upon a shifty backfield attack to meet the superior weight of Centre. He sent the backfield through a stiff workout on a muddy field and then sent the varsity into scrimmage with a frosh eleven.

BENTON FAVORED

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 30.—Rube Benton, the veteran formerly with the New York Giants, was Minneapolis' likely pitching choice today as the American Association champions faced Newark, leaders in the International league, in the third game of the world's little series. Each team has won one game.

Pete Jablonowski was expected to pitch for Newark. After this afternoon's game the Clubs will leave for Minneapolis to continue the series.

KING NAMES U. S. SURGEON

LONDON—A distinguished American surgeon has been appointed to one of the "plums" of British surgical work. It was officially announced King George "has been graciously pleased" to approve the appointment of James R. Learmonth, Associate Professor of Neurologic Surgery in the University of Minnesota, to Regius Professor of Surgery in the University of Aberdeen, Scotland.

'IRISH' STARS ON CARDINAL "PRO" SQUAD

Moynihan, Nash and Dahlman Play and Chevigny Coaches Chicago Collegians.

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 29.—Twenty Chicago Cardinals who wrote football history in flaming newspaper headlines in college days and who are continuing to write it in the National Football League will match brain and brawn against the Portsmouth Spartans at Universal Stadium here Sunday. The tilt is clocked to start at 3 p. m.

Casting a broad beam of red cross the grid horizon, Chicago's Red Birds have their pin feathers all primed for next Sunday's outing and will bring to Portsmouth a galaxy of football talent seldom, if ever equalled, on any athletic club.

CHEVIGNY COACHES

It's plain though, that the Chicagoans have Patsy Clark doing a lot of thinking. Although happy enough over Sunday's 7 to 0 victory over the New York Giants, the Cardinals have a whole bagful of ricks which has kept them in the League's first division for the past two seasons and may carry them to the top rung in 1932. Coached by Jack Chevigny, formerly Notre Dame star, whom "Doc" Jones signed at a fancy figure, Chicago is the only team in the league using the Knute Rockne system of play exclusively. Chevigny gathered his players from the four corners of the continent, gave some 50 odd of them a chance to show what they had in three practice games and is now ready for his 1932 try at National League honors with a squad pared down to 20. It includes three former Rockne coached pals from Notre Dame, Big Tim Moynihan, Joe Nash and Bucky Dahman.

In the Red Bird backfield Chevigny probably will start Holmer, Risk, Peters and Holm. Frosty Peters has the trustiest drop kicking toe in the league and still holds the world's collegiate record for most goals in one game. Playing under Zupke at Illinois, Frosty booted 18 out of 21 between the uprights in addition to averaging 50 yards on his punts the same day. Holm is now other than "Boy of Alabama" whose choice for All-American fullback in 1930 was unchallenged in higher circles. At the Creighton and Rogge are two Cardinal veterans who will vie for honors with McKalip, Ebding and Mitchell, Portsmouth's prize trio. Simas, and Stennett of St. Mary's, Rose, McLain, Moore and Schwartz are other threats in the Cardinal backfield. In the line Kiesling at 245 pounds heads the list in avoirdupois. The others taper off down to a mere 200.

LAW PERMITS MAN TO KIDNAP OWN WIFE

DENVER—Denver police recently discovered that there was no law in Colorado to prevent a man kidnapping his own wife. Mrs. E. C. Carter reported to police that Emmett L. Smiley had driven away with her daughter, Mrs. Smiley, despite the latter's vigorous protests. Smiley and his wife had been estranged for four months. Police learned they were powerless to interfere.

Smiley brought his wife to her mother's home three hours later. Mrs. Smiley said that her husband had yielded to her tearful pleading to be returned to her mother's home after he had driven 33 miles on the road to Watkins, Colo., where his relatives live.

GOLFERS LOSE RETURN MATCH

Casey and Mack Mader Play Fine Golf But Washington C. H. Takes Match.

Circleville golfers lost their second match of the season at Washington C. H. Wednesday afternoon by a score of 36 1-2 to 17 1-2.

Statistics show that Circleville's 13 players averaged 100.5 on 18 holes while Washington C. H.'s team averaged 96.6.

The best two scores of the day were recorded by Frank Casey, local professional, who won his match from Jack Gardam, Washington pro, by carding a 74. Mack Mader had 82 for the next best local score.

WILLIAMSPORT

F. E. Jennings of Columbus and formerly of Williamsport, was a visitor here Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Schwarz and son Paul, of Columbus spent the week-end with his father Andrew Schwarz and Mrs. Schwarz.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Edge of Washington C. H. were Williamsport visitors Monday afternoon.

The Hamman families were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Hamman Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stewart has as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Cross of Columbus.

Mrs. Barbara Cook and Earl Cook spent Sunday in Chillicothe.

Mrs. Thomas B. Gephart very pleasantly entertained her bridge club Tuesday afternoon.

Fall flowers in various color added charm to the occasion.

Following five rounds of play a tempting lunch was served at four tables.

When scores were counted, Mrs. Lee Luellen received the trophy for high, while Mrs. R. V. Hamman was presented the low score prize.

One must admit that those Iowa farm strikers stick to their principles. They chose to be exclusionists when the country checked immigration and now they must be exclusionists toward competitive farm products for which there are not enough mouths.

the progress of the case. The speaker pointed out that radio stations controlled by the large newspapers of the east so far surpassed the reports of the two systems that it was only a short time before they discontinued broadcasting. The vast army of news gatherers on the payroll of the newspapers provided the difference, Mr. French declared.

He touched upon some of his experiences in broadcasting then turned to the much-feared "Radio Rumor", which he said is usually caused by back-fence conversation. He recalled a broadcast of his where one woman probably busy in the kitchen at lunch time, mistook a statement he had made then went to the backfence and told Mrs. Smith about it. The latter passed it on until a large number of persons had been given the wrong conception of the statement. He explained the "Radio Rumor" of the suicide of Betty Gow at the time of the Lindbergh kidnapping.

"The report was started," Mr. French said, "by an operator on brokerage lines from the east. During a lull in business the operators pass messages back and forth over their lines. One operator in an eastern city reported over the wire that he had heard Betty Gow had suicided. The report went over the entire nation's brokerage lines and gradually worked out into the streets. Many persons wondered why the newspapers did not carry the story, but it didn't take me long to inform my listeners at noon that there was no truth in the suicide report."

The Four Magic Highwaymen, broadcasting male quartet, which was to have been on the program was unable to make the trip because of a date to go on the air but Rotarians and their guests were informed the men would come at a later date.

The program was in charge of Dr. G. D. Phillips. A meeting will be held next week, Pumpkin Show week, but no program is planned. W. F. Cellar, chairman of the committee, reported.

tail sales in southwestern Ohio during August increased 13 percent from July with the improvement in southeastern Ohio less than one percent. The northeast and northwest districts reported declines.

An increase of 2.2 percent in retail trade was reported in the state as a whole, but the change is due to the two more business days in August than in July. Total dollar sales for the January-August period this year were 27.1 percent under those of the same period in 1931, but price changes contributed to this decline, the report explains.

to 1 and was sent to the senate which lost no time in placing it in the hands of the senate finance committee.

CALL ROHE BILL

The senate then called up the Rohe bill, embodying the recommendations of the senate economy committee, substituted the Governor's plan for reducing salaries of state officials and employees, and then sent the bill back to the senate finance committee for further consideration before it is again called up on the question of passage.

The Governor's proposal is to reduce wages up to, and including, $1,000 five per cent, the next $4,000, or any part thereof, 10 per cent, and all in excess of $5,000, would be cut 15 per cent.

The senate economy committee's plan is to cut the first $1,000, or less, five per cent, the second $1,000, 10 per cent and then advance 2 1/2 per cent on each succeeding thousand, or fractions thereof.

The house substituted for the Governor's plan the proposal that the first $1,000 be reduced five per cent, the second $1,000 be lowered 10 per cent, the third $1,000 be reduced 13 per cent, the fourth $1,000 be cut 16 per cent and that three per cent be added to the reduction percentage for each succeeding $1,000.

It was claimed that despite its exemption of all employees receiving less than $1,000, this plan would yield the state about $100,000 a year more than would the Governor's plan.

Under the present house plan, the highest salary paid by the state—$13,500 a year to President George W. Rightmire, Ohio State University, would be cut to $10,040, that of Gov. George White would be reduced from $10,000 to $7,970, while the 159 employees receiving $2,000 would be cut to $1,850; the 270 receiving $3,000 to $2,720; the 46 receiving $4,000 to $3,560 and the 31 receiving $5,000 to $4,370.

Not content with taking issue with the house on the question of cutting salaries of state officials, the senate shunted to its elections committee the Governor's bill which, applying the 5-10-15 per cent reduction plan to county election officials, passed the house by a vote of 113 to 0.

By a vote of 15 to 7, the senate then proceeded to pass the bill applying to election board members and employees the senate economy committee plan of percentage reductions.

It seemed assured that when this bill reaches the house today sufficient opposition to it will develop to send it to a joint conference committee.

BOTH UNANIMOUS

Both the senate and house

however, were unanimous in their approval of the Governor's bill cutting the compensation of county elective officials on the 10-15 per cent basis. This bill now goes to the governor and is the first to pass the gauntlet in both legislative branches. It is estimated to save about $245,000 a year.

The house bill cutting salaries of state officials and employees is estimated to save about $2,000,000 annually, compared with a yearly saving of approximately $160,000 in excess of the Governor's plan.

After passing the house by a vote of 108 to 0, the Governor's bill setting up the machinery by the state for the distribution to cities and other political subdivisions poor relief funds loaned by the federal reconstruction finance corporations, was in the hands of the senate judiciary committee today.

A joint resolution pending before the senate today, on the question of adoption, requests judges and other officials not affected by such salary-cutting legislation as may be enacted at the present session to voluntarily accept the same rate of reduction as may be contained in such legislation.

This resolution was recommended by both the Governor and the senate economy committee.

King and Ex-King at Ringside

Among the spectators that thronged the Garden Bowl, at Long Island City, and saw Max Schmeling, German heavyweight score an eight-round technical knock-out over Mickey Walker, were the two notable ring figures shown here. At top is the familiar Jack Dempsey, former champion, who viewed the battle in the company of two distinguished beauties, the sisters, Irene and Ruth George. Lower photo shows Champion Jack Sharkey with his wife. The Boston sailor had more than usual interest in the proceedings as he will probably meet the winner in a return bout for the title.

GRAPES ARE RIPE AND PLENTIFUL

Grapes for grape juice, jams, and jellies are coming along at their best just now. These are the native American grapes, grown in the Eastern, Southeastern, Northern and Central States. They are plentiful and cheap in local markets, and coming in large shipments from the great grape-growing States of New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan. More than a quarter of a million tons, or half a billion pounds, of native grapes are produced each year, in addition to the product of California and far-western States, which grow several times as many of their special kinds of grapes.

The housewife's opportunity to provide at small expense a store of grape juice, grape jelly, grape butter, and grape marmalade, for winter, as well as to serve her family now with fresh grapes for breakfast or dinner, and grape pie or grape pudding at either the midday or the evening meal.

East of the Rockies, the native American grapes are almost the only varieties cultivated for market. Concord, Catawba, Niagara, Worden Delaware in the North, and the Scuppernon with other Muscadine varieties in the South, where they flourish will also. The best known of the native American grapes is the Concord, which provides most of the commercially bottled grape juice. The Pacific slope grows European varieties—Muscat for raisins, Thompson seedless, Malaga, Tokay, Alicante, and other sweet grapes for the table.

Grapes, grape juice, jams or grape jellies add much to the appearance and tempting quality of a meal, but they are not merely decorative. Nutritionists of the Bureau of Home Economics have found that Concord grape skins are a good source of food iron, and the skins, though not usually eaten raw, go into the making of grape juice, jams and marmalades. Thus grapes may do their bit toward balancing a meal that might otherwise be too heavy with starch, fat, and protein.

The very best grapes for jelly-making, say many experts jelly makers, are wild grapes, which are brought to market by country people, or which may be gathered in the woods or along country lanes. Some wild grapes—fox grapes particularly—rank with currents and crabapples at the top of the list of fruits for jelly because of the pectin, or jelly-making substance, they contain.

Concord grapes, however, are great favorites for any of the purposes the native grapes may serve. Often the juice is bottled and stored for use either as a drink or for making into jelly later on. Delaying the jelly making is one way to overcome the "spikes," or crystals of tartaric acid, that in grape juice or grape jelly. These crystals are harmless, but they are gritty and spoil the smoothness of the jelly.

When grape jelly is to be made up at once, say the jelly experts of the bureau, there will be fewer "spikes" if the juice is allowed to stand over night. Next day dip it carefully away from the crystals which will have formed on bottom and sides of the bowl, and strain it through a fine cloth.

In the economical household, the

Every woman faces this question "How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.

So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B which tones the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it finer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoons daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Grape Tapioca Pudding
1 quart stemmed Concord grapes;
1 cup water;
1 cup sugar;
1-4 cup quick-cooking tapioca;
1-4 teaspoon salt;
1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Cook the grapes and water for about five minutes, and press through a sieve to remove the skins and seeds. Add the sugar, tapioca, and salt to the grape juice and pulp and cook for 25 minutes in a double boiler. Add the lemon juice, and let the pudding stand until cold. Serve with top milk.

Grape Conserve
4 pounds Concord Grapes;
2 pounds sugar;
1-4 teaspoon salt;
1 cup seedless raisins;
1 orange
1 cup finely chopped nuts.

Wash and drain, remove from the stems, and clip off the skins, and keep them separate. Cook the grape pulp through a sieve to remove the seeds. To the grape pulp add the sugar, salt, raisins, and orange, which has been chopped fine, rind and all, and had the seeds removed. Cook rapidly until the mixture begins to thicken, and stir frequently to prevent sticking. Add the grape skins, cook for 10 minutes longer, or until the conserve is thick. Stir in the chopped nuts, and pour at once into hot sterilized jelly glasses. When cold, cover with melted paraffin, and store in a cool, dry place.

Hot Spiced Grape Juice
1 quart grape juice;
1-2 cup sugar;
12 short pieces stick cinnamon;
12 whole cloves;
1-8 teaspoon salt.

Mix all the ingredients, bring to the boiling point, cool, and let stand for several hours. When ready to serve, reheat, remove the spices, and add lemon juice if desired.

Spiced Grape Jelly
6 pounds stemmed grapes;
1 cup vinegar;
Sugar;
1 tablespoon cloves;
5 pieces stick cinnamon in inch long.

Cook the grapes, vinegar, and spices together rapidly until the grape seeds show, and stir constantly. Strain through four or five thicknesses of cheesecloth. For each cup of juice add three-fourths of a cup of sugar, and boil rapidly until the test indicates the mixture will jelly. Pour into hot sterilized glasses and cover with cheesecloth until set and cold. Cover with a light layer of melted paraffin and when hard add more paraffin, rotating the glass so that a high rim will be formed. Cover, label, and store in a cool place. This jelly is especially good when served with game and other meats.

GRAPES ARE RIPE AND PLENTIFUL

Grapes for grape juice, jams, and jellies are coming along at their best just now. These are the native American grapes, grown in the Eastern, Southeastern, Northern, and Central States. They are plentiful and cheap in local markets, and coming in large shipments from the great grape-growing States of New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan. More than a quarter of a million tons, or half a billion pounds, of native grapes are produced east of the Rocky Mountains each year, in addition to the product of California and far-western States, which grow several times as many of their special kinds of grapes.

For the housewife's opportunity to provide at small expense a store of grape juice, grape jelly, grape butter, and grape marmalade for winter, as well as to serve her family now with fresh grapes, breakfast or dinner, and grape pie or grape pudding at either the middle or the evening meal.

East of the Rockies, the native American grapes are almost the only varieties cultivated for market—Concord, Catawba, Niagara, Worden, Delaware in the North, and the Scuppernon with other Muscadine varieties in the South, where they flourish will also. The best known of the native American grapes is the Concord, which provides most of the commercially bottled grape juice. The Pacific slope grows European varieties—Muscat for raisins, Thompson seedless, Malaga, Tokay, Alicante, and other sweet grapes for the table.

Grapes, grape juice, jams or grape jellies add much to the appearance and tempting quality of a meal, but they are not merely decorative. Nutritionists of the Bureau of Home Economics have found that Concord grape skins are a good source of food iron, and the skins, though not usually eaten raw, go into the making of grape juice, jellies and marmalades. Thus grapes may do their bit toward balancing a meal that might otherwise be too heavy with starch, fat, and protein.

The very best grapes for jelly-making, say many experts jelly makers, are wild grapes, which are brought to market by country people, or which may be gathered in the woods or along country lanes. Some wild grapes—fox grapes, particularly—rank with currents and crabapples at the top of the list of fruits for jelly because of the pectin, or jelly-making substance, they contain. Concord grapes, however, are great favorites for any of the purposes the native grapes may serve. Often the juice is bottled and stored for use either as a drink or for making into jelly later on. Delaying the jelly making is one way to overcome the "spikes," or crystals of tartaric acid, that in grape juice or grape jelly. These crystals are harmless, but they are gritty and spoil the smoothness of the jelly.

When grape jelly is to be made up at once, say the jelly experts of the bureau, there will be fewer "spikes" if the juice is allowed to stand over night. Next day dip it carefully away from the crystals which will have formed on bottom and sides of the bowl, and strain it through a fine cloth.

In the economical household, the pomace of skins and pulp that remain after the juice is extracted usually go into grape butter. One half as much sugar as pomace, a little salt, and spice to taste are added, the mixture is cooked down until thick, and packed boiling hot in sterilized jars.

The bureau offers a recipe for a spiced jelly which goes particularly well with meat; also recipes for a grape conserve, hot spiced grape juice, and a grape tapioca pudding. A delicious grape pie may be made of Concord grapes. The juice and pulp are heated through a sieve and thickened for about 5 minutes, then rubbed through a sieve. The grape skins and some lemon juice are then added and the filling is poured into the crust and baked in a hot oven for about half an hour.

RECIPES

Spiced Grape Jelly
6 pounds stemmed grapes;
1 cup vinegar;
Sugar;
1 tablespoon cloves;
5 pieces stick cinnamon in inch long.
Cook the grapes, vinegar, and spices together rapidly until the grape seeds show, and stir constantly. Strain through four or five thicknesses of cheesecloth. For each cup of juice add three-fourths of a cup of sugar, and boil rapidly until the test indicates the mixture will set. Pour into hot sterilized glasses and cover with cheesecloth until set and cold. Cover with a light layer of melted paraffin and when hard add more paraffin, rotating the glass so that a high rim will be formed. Cover, label, and store in a cool place. This jelly is especially good when served with game and other meats.

Grape Conserve
4 pounds Concord Grapes;
2 pounds sugar;
1-4 teaspoon salt;
1 cup seedless raisins;
1 orange
1 cup finely chopped nuts.
Wash and drain, remove from the stems, and clip off the skins and keep them separate. Cook the grape pulp through a sieve to remove the seeds. To the grape pulp add the sugar, salt, raisins, and orange, which has been chopped fine, rind and all, and had the seeds removed. Cook rapidly until the mixture begins to thicken, and stir frequently to prevent sticking. Add the grape skins, cook for 10 minutes longer, or until the conserve is thick. Stir in the chopped nuts, and pour at once into hot sterilized jelly glasses. When cold, cover with melted paraffin, and store in a cool, dry place.

Hot Spiced Grape Juice
1 quart grape juice;
1-2 cup sugar;
12 short pieces stick cinnamon;
12 whole cloves;
1-8 teaspoon salt.
Mix all the ingredients, bring to the boiling point, cool, and let stand for several hours. When ready to serve, reheat, remove the spices, and add lemon juice if desired. Serve hot with sandwiches or cookies.

Grape Tapioca Pudding
1 quart stemmed Concord grapes;
1 cup water;
1 cup sugar;
1-4 cup quick-cooking tapioca;
1-4 teaspoon salt;
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
Cook the grapes and water for about five minutes, and press through a sieve to remove the skins and seeds. Add the sugar, tapioca, and salt to the grape juice and pulp and cook for 25 minutes in a double boiler. Add the lemon juice, and let the pudding stand until cold. Serve with top milk.

WOMEN'S JOBS MENACED

ROME—The threat to eliminate women from jobs in public and private offices has again appeared in the Italian presses. The Fascist Syndicates of Operatives, Professionals and Artists have taken up the problem and its origin. Il Lavoro Fascista, roundly declares that with so many fathers of families of the white collar category looking for jobs, many of the women and girls who are now employed in offices must be replaced by men before winter.

EVERY WOMAN faces this question

"How do I look to other people?" If you have a lovely skin, attractive eyes, and plenty of enthusiasm, you need not worry.

So many women, though, risk their beauty by neglect of constipation. It often causes loss of pep, sallow skins, dull eyes, pimples.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This cereal provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B which tones the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Special cooking processes make it finer, more palatable. It is not habit-forming.

Surely this is safer than abusing the system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

The Railroad Problem

BACK of the commission if inquiry into the state of the railroads are savings institutions, big insurance companies and other like semi-public enterprises holding the securities of the railroads. The railroad problem is their problem. Demagogues speak of the "railroad interests" as parasites gorging themselves at the expense of the people. They imply that those "interests" are capitalist parasites. Those are not the real "railroad interests." The real interests are the hundreds of thousands of widows and orphans and estates owning railroad stocks and bonds, the insurance companies holding for millions of policyholders railroad bonds worth billions, savings banks which have purchased railroad bonds with the savings of their millions of depositors. Railroad corporations and managers will have no part in the conduct of the inquiry. With Calvin Coolidge directing it the country can depend upon the inquiry being leavened with sound and practical common sense. There is no likelihood of its becoming a whitewash party for the railroad management or government regulation. There is a railroad problem before the country and it is a national problem touching every phase of our national life. Until the railroads work their way out of the morass of poor business high operating costs and inadequate capital there will be billions of capital frozen as tight as Arctic ice. Isn't it logical to suppose that there is something to do with the depression?

Vagaries of Winter

WITH a multiplicity of signs and portents handed down from times immemorial, to say nothing of meteorological science at the command of the federal government, humanity never knows in advance what is in the mind of Old Man Winter. The vagaries of other seasons are taken as a matter of course; the sudden shifts of winter weather are constantly surprising. Why they are another matter for surprise, since nothing is more certain than that all will be taken unawares. A long and balmy season of typical fall weather encourages the hope that winter will trail along, mild and open. Then, without warning, the entire country will often find itself shivering in zero or near-zero temperatures, bucking biting winds, and often plowing through deep and drifted snow. It doesn't pay to depend on the weather. "Indian Summer" isn't a fixed season. Over a large part of the United States an early winter may descend upon the unsuspecting land just when "Indian Summer" is due. Nor does the premature arrival of cold weather invariably presage a "hard winter." No two winters are alike. Winter strikes when the mood is on it. Whether the first attack is early or late, it is neither a threat nor a promise for the future. Of only one thing can we be sure: in due course it will go. There is nothing to be done about it, in season or out.

The Badge of Wealth

NOWHERE else in the world, they say, is practically everybody willing to admit that he is out for all the money he can make; yet nowhere else is money, once gained, treated with such disrespect by its possessors. In fact, a very rich American who does not give away a large part of his possessions is regarded as rather a dubious fellow. We are all after money and yet we do not object to parting with money as soon as we get it. What is the answer? It is that we do not really care any more about money than do other peoples, but that we go after it in America simply because there is nothing else for a man to go after. It is human to crave distinction, and the easiest way to win distinction is to acquire great riches. The esteem of worthy men is of course the only real distinction attainable by any man, anywhere, and it is the only distinction a truly great American desires. But the truth is that such rare birds that they may be disregarded in any calculation involving the masses of the population. Most people are less concerned about being actually superior than about securing somehow a badge of superiority. An Englishman finds such a badge in a title of nobility. A Frenchman can obtain the ribbon of the Legion of Honor or membership in the Academy or the Institute. But the American has only the badge of wealth. Only in that way can he prove his talents to the world.

MURDER of the NIGHT CLUB LADY

THE NEW THATCHER COLT DETECTIVE MYSTERY

BY ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY CONVIC-FRIEDLE INC. DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

SYNOPSIS

Lola Carewe, "The Night Club Lady", and her guest, Christine Quires, are mysteriously murdered in the former's apartment. Scores were the instruments of death. The police suspect Guy Everett, the last person to see Christine alive. Lola had blackmail evidence. He, however, claims that Christine discovered a plot to kill Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt learns that a young Paris bank clerk, named Basil Bouchard, loved Lola. After robbing a bank to buy her a ruby, Basil disappeared. His parents sold medical laboratory specimens. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, became hysterical at the mention of Basil, calling her daughter a beast and saying Lola never loved him. Edgar Quires, Christine's brother, left his Rochester home for New York following the receipt of a telegram the day of the murders. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Suspicion also points to Dr. Hugh Baldwin when it is disclosed that he purchased scorpions. He had stated that heart failure caused the deaths. Colt, calling to question Baldwin, finds him dead—from a scorpion bite! Mrs. Baldwin reveals that she knew her husband was involved with Lola.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

A MOMENT later she was gone. Instantly Colt turned to Marshall. "You have been tailing Doctor Baldwin?" "Yes, Mr. Commissioner." "What have you got to report?" "Very little, sir. Lieutenant Fallon put me on the job when the doctor left here last night. He got down the elevator in front of me and I was afraid I'd missed him but the elevator operator told me he had got off at the second floor where his office was. So I came back to the second floor and prowled around a bit. There was a light in the office. I could see it through the glass pane, so I pretended to be a drunk and rapped on the door. And I asked the doctor if he could give me something to straighten me out before I went home to the wife. When he came to the door, he looked awful mad. He had a wild look in his eyes and his hands were shaking. And he told me to get the hell out of here. So I thought that was all right. "I beat it downstairs with Deems, that's my partner, and I put him on the servants' entrance. There is only two ways you can get out of this joint, the front door or the servants' entrance. So then I went over and saw the superintendent of the house across the street and he fixed me up with this uniform. So I stands there all morning and about ten o'clock the doc came out. I blew the whistle—Baldwin thought I was calling a cab but my partner knew it was a signal, so Deems came and he began to tail the doc. Pretty soon I see Deems bringing the doc back, and I ask him where he went. "Well, he has a pretty funny story to tell. The doc went to the corner and got in a cab and Deems in another cab right after him. They drove across town, through the transverse, under Central Park and over to West End Avenue to an apartment house on the corner of Seventy-second Street. But Baldwin didn't go in. He got out of the cab, and meets a man, a little dark-complexioned fellow. The man gave him a box and the doc gave him some money. Then he gets back into the cab and drives back to the corner of Third Avenue where he gets out of the cab and walks over here. "You can get out of that uniform now," said Colt, when the detective came to a full pause. Marshall clicked his heels together.

LOOKING BACK In Pickaway County

10 YEARS AGO

CIRCLEVILLE day at the Lauchville fall festival was a red letter day. John Hummel represented Mayor Remick. The festival is to raise funds for a community hall.

Derby defeated Robtown, 39 to 19, in a baseball game featured by seven home runs.

Mrs. Abbie Gusman has been named chairman of the local Florence L. Allen committee.

15 YEARS AGO

The Chillicothe light and power plant has been seized by the government following a report that the city will build power for Camp Sherman. Armed guards are on duty.

The Chamber of Commerce is studying the possible location of a shoe factory contemplating locating here.

A record was set Friday

"Don't you need me any further, chief?" "Need you any further? You made a mess of your job, Marshall. If you had stuck with Deems, one of you could have followed the little dark man and the other kept after Baldwin. You both should be demoted to patrolmen and sent to Staten Island for this. Now get out of that uniform and report back at your station house. No wonder the newspapers say the police don't know their business."

When the crestfallen Marshall had left the apartment, Colt went to the telephone and called Plaza 3-73625, the apartment of Lola Carewe. While he was waiting, he remarked to me that the small dark man was undoubtedly the Spanish dealer who had sold Baldwin the insects. A moment later he was talking to Inspector Flynn, who had told Colt he would meet him there.

In a few brisk sentences, Colt broke the news to the Inspector. Even though I was unable to listen in, I could hear the grunt of surprise from the Assistant Chief Inspector when he learned of the third tragedy. He promised to put a call through to Headquarters at once for Multooler and the other department agencies. But to this Colt demurred.

"Get Multooler," he sanctioned, "but keep the rest away for a while—until we know what we are looking for."

"Okay, chief. Do you want me down there?"

Colt reflected for a moment and then delayed his answer as he asked: "Is Mrs. Carewe awake?" "Not yet."

"You're sure she is perfectly all right?" "Sleeping sound as a dollar, sir, so are they all, the maid and the butler, each in a separate room, snoring in a different key."

Colt's brows were still furrowed. "It sounds silly, I suppose," he reflected aloud, "but I am afraid to let you out of that house, Flynn. We've had three sudden deaths since we came into this case—we've got to see that Mrs. Carewe is protected."

"I'll stick on the job until I hear from you."

"All right."

As he hung up the receiver, Colt turned again to the private office where lay the body of Doctor Baldwin. Then he began his slow, meticulous search. At first glance, he found nothing extraordinary. The office was like the ordinary consultation room of any successful physician in a modern building. There was neither taste nor distinction in its equipment. It was all as utilitarian and efficient as any unimagineable office supply firm could make it, with sectional bookcases, steel waste basket, and a steel desk.

The only incongruous note in all the dull, twentieth-century stream-line atmosphere of the place was the distorted question mark of a body twisted and dead on the floor. What had happened to Baldwin? The manner of his taking off would not give me any rest. Again and again the riddle broke across my mind like dark waves spilling on a beach.

Marshall had said that Doctor Baldwin was alone in the office, when the detective, playing drunk, had walked in. In spite of his faults, Marshall was a faithful and accurate observer, yet even with faithful and accurate observation, could we believe his report? Had not Colt himself faithfully and accurately observed all the possible hiding-places in Lola's pent-house? Yet with guards at all the entrances, Death had got by unseen, had swept through unnoticed and left its beautiful victims contorted on the floor. And the agent, the instrumentality of Death, had got away too, under the noses of all of our observation and accuracy. Only in Baldwin's case had we found the dead scorpion. Was it not possible, then, that unknown to Marshall and unknown to Doctor Baldwin, someone had hidden in these rooms also, waiting to turn Death loose—loose out of its box—out of that container which Colt had said must have been used?

Or was it the box which the small dark man had given to Baldwin? Had it concealed the scorpion? Had Baldwin been the victim of an accident or of a trick? Or had he deliberately let it loose?

These and a dozen other questions filled my mind as I watched Thatcher Colt begin his investigation into the third death of this baffling series. Perhaps the same questions filled the chief's mind too but if so, he did not, at that time, act upon them. His interests were following a different path altogether, some unknown path the chart to which he kept to himself. I stood, my back against the closed door, while Thatcher Colt knelt again beside the body.

First he began a deliberate search of the pockets. The doctor was still in his dinner jacket and only a hasty search was necessary. As a result, Thatcher Colt turned over to me a silver cigarette case engraved with the initials, "H B," a box of matches, theater ticket stubs from the Hudson Theater, seats J 1 and 3 right, some loose silver, a ring of keys and a small leather pocketbook containing $300 in bank notes.

I took charge of all of this miscellany with the exception of the set of keys, which Colt examined with curiosity. Most of them were not difficult to identify—keys for the ignition and door of an automobile, keys to a flat brass key, even deposit to the front door of an apartment and larger ones of the same pattern which Colt demonstrated belonged to the office. There remained one key which Colt isolated from the others, and held aloft between his thumb and forefinger, studying the irregular pattern of its shank with intensified interest. A grim smile duttered over his strong lips and vanished as he said:

"I'll keep this myself, Tony. You can have it later."

Then thrusting the ring fingly into his own pocket he resumed his search, beginning methodically with the top of the desk, and working down the right-hand stack of drawers and up the left.

Here again we started on what seemed a dreary unpromising search. With that worship of tidiness so characteristic of business and professional Americans, the top of Doctor Baldwin's desk was scrupulously bare. All the tools for using a desk were there in ink-well, prescription pad, blotter, but that was all. The desk was a vast expanse of leather over stretched away from the emerald chair like a desert.

In the top drawer at the right there was the same neatness: drinking glass, a towel, a piece of soap in a box, and a supply of clean handkerchiefs. The second drawer was chiefly empty. The third was a much deeper drawer with a false front that would make one believe there were two instead of one. It contained three unopened boxes of cigars, a doubt Christmas presents from grateful patients.

As I made an inventory in a notebook, I asked myself if anything less personal could be so intimately a man's desk. It is his most intimate article of furniture, close to him than a cradle to a baby. Yet Doctor Baldwin had seemed to leave the slightest trace of his individuality upon his magnificent desk.

Starving for Thirty Days One Way to Treat Colitis

Many Laymen Mistake Some Other Simple Ailment for This Malady, Which Is Really Serious, and Which Requires Change of Diet and Habits.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY medical words are seized upon by laymen and frequently misused. For example, the word "colitis" often is used with a mistaken notion of its meaning and applied to mild and rather vague intestinal disorders. Many persons think he is suffering from colitis when in reality the ailment is something of a different nature.

Dr. Copeland

I warn you that real colitis is something serious when neglected. It is an inflammation of the colon, the large intestine, caused by an infection.

Bacteria are always found in the large intestine, and when the tissues become irritated as a result of accumulated toxins or poisons, the bacteria increase in number. Then the mucous membrane or lining of the bowel is still more irritated.

Though worry, fatigue or severe emotional excitement may produce an attack of colitis, it is usually attributed to a faulty diet. When the diet is lacking in the natural foods and consists of large quantities of starch, sugar and meat, the number of intestinal bacteria is greatly increased, and the amount of poisons liberated by these bacteria is too great to be properly handled by the intestine.

The patient notices that his eliminations contain mucus and blood. These are the characteristic signs of colitis. The attacks sometimes come on in paroxysms. Abdominal pain, tenderness and discomfort may be present or absent.

This disease is often complicated

by other abdominal disturbances, such as chronic gall bladder disease, chronic appendicitis, or ulcers of the stomach or intestine. In these cases, the pain and discomfort are severe and varied in character.

Drugs and other methods of treatment are of little value in colitis. The most important thing to do is to correct the diet and manner of living.

Recent investigation shows that primitives who live outdoors and eat only natural foods never suffer from colitis, appendicitis, ulcers or gallstones. It has been noted, too, that cancer of these organs is rarely encountered in these people.

The diet should contain some foods that leave a residue in the intestine. These are, mainly, vegetables, cereals and fruits.

Some institutions caring for colitis patients recommend a thirty-day "starvation diet." During this period water flavored with fruit juices is considered of chief importance. Tea, or water in which vegetables have been boiled, also is permitted. A moderate amount of exercise, massage and daily enemas are given.

If you are suffering from colitis, never take a strong laxative. This is merely adding insult to injury. The bowel should be cleansed daily by warm irrigations, for which water heated to 110 or 115 degrees should be used, but not more than a pint at a time. Add one half teaspoonful of salt to every pint of water used and after using the first pint let it escape before a second pint is used. Continue this until the returned fluid is clear. This treatment should be given daily.

All colitis patients should be under the personal care of a physician. These are the characteristic signs of colitis. The attacks sometimes come on in paroxysms. Abdominal pain, tenderness and discomfort may be present or absent.

This disease is often complicated

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. R. Q.—What do you advise for perspiring feet? What for nervousness?

A.—For nervousness, have a complete physical examination to find the cause, including the teeth, tonsils and urine. Build up the general health with nourishing food, plenty of rest, fresh air, gentle exercise, and diversion. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and receive your other question.

The Daily Horoscope

Thursday, Sept. 29, 1932

Fairly good aspects operate until four o'clock and after this time according to astrology, one should be careful not to act too suddenly; the tendency should be to deal with others in a moderate, deliberate and discriminative way.

The real early hours of today are especially good for making new plans, writing love letters and making resolutions. Under this rule of the stars, the latter part of the morning hours, should be auspicious and may be best devoted to unusual pursuits.

adopting radical methods and making extreme changes. The mind at this time should be active, studious and creative. There should be active buying at the department stores in certain commodities as books, fish and sea food, drugs and all forms of liquids, canned goods etc.

During the afternoon aspects of the Moon parallel to Neptune, there should be gain through the mediumistic, inspirational and artistic faculties. Success may be met in secret alliances and secret orders.

It is a lucky time to advertise, write stories and to go on journeys. As the day comes to a close and during the evening one should be more discriminating and use care in all undertakings.

Children born on this day are fond of the good things of life; they should do well on the stage. Pompey the Great, Roman triumvir and soldier was born on this date.

Others who have also celebrated it as a birthday include Etienne Bonnot de Condillac, French philosopher and Henry Hobson Richardson, 1839, noted architect.

The Railroad Problem

BACK of the commission inquiry into the state of the railroads are savings institutions, big insurance companies and other like semi-public enterprises holding the securities of the railroads. The railroad problem is their problem. Demagogues speak of the "railroad interests" as parasites gorging themselves at the expense of the people. They imply that those "interests" are capitalistic pirates. Those are not the real "railroad interests." The real interests are the hundreds of thousands of widows and orphans and estates owning railroad stocks and bonds, the insurance companies holding for millions of policyholders railroad bonds worth billions, savings banks which have purchased railroad bonds with the savings of their millions of depositors.

Railroad corporations and managers will have no part in the conduct of the inquiry. With Calvin Coolidge directing it the country can depend upon the inquiry being leavened with sound and practical common sense. There is no likelihood of its becoming a whitewash party for the railroad management or government regulation. There is a railroad problem before the country and it is a national problem touching every phase of our national life. Until the railroads work their way out of the morass of poor business high operating costs and inadequate capital there will be 11 billions of capital frozen as tight as Arctic ice. Isn't it logical to suppose that there is something to do with the depression?

Vagaries of Winter

WITH a multiplicity of signs and portents handed down from times immemorial, to say nothing of meteorological science at the command of the federal government, humanity never knows in advance what is in the mind of Old Man Winter.

The vagaries of other seasons are taken as a matter of course; the sudden shifts of winter weather are constantly surprising. Why they are is another matter for surprise, since nothing is more certain than that all will be taken unawares.

A long and balmy season of typical fall weather encourages the hope that winter will trail along, mild and open. Then, without warning, the entire country is often find itself shivering in zero or near-zero temperatures, bucking biting winds, and often plowing through deep and drifted snow.

It doesn't pay to depend on the weather. "Indian Summer" isn't a fixed season. Over a large part of the United States an early winter may descend upon the unsuspecting land just when "Indian Summer" is due. Nor does the premature arrival of cold weather invariably presage a "hard winter."

No two winters are alike. Winter strikes when the mood is on it. Whether the first attack is early or late, it is neither a threat nor a warning for the future. Of only one thing can we be sure; in due course it will go. There is nothing to be done about it, in season or out.

15 YEARS AGO

The Chillicothe light and power plant has been seized by the government following a report that the city will halt power for Camp Sherman. Armed guards are on duty.

The Chamber of Commerce is studying the possible location of a shoe factory contemplating locating here.

A record was set Friday

"Don't you need me any further, chief?"

"Need you any further? You made a mess of your job, Marshall. If you had stuck with Deems, one of you could have followed the little dark man and the other kept after Baldwin. You both should be demoted to patrolmen and sent to Staten Island for this. Now get out of that uniform and report back at your station house. No wonder the newspapers say the police don't know their business."

When the crestfallen Marshall had left the apartment, Colt went to the telephone and called Plaza 3-73625, the apartment of Loia Carewe. While he was waiting, he remarked to me that the small dark man was undoubtedly the Spanish dealer who had sold Baldwin the insects. A moment later he was talking to Inspector Flynn, who had told Colt he would meet him there.

In a few brisk sentences, Colt broke the news to the Inspector. Even though I was unable to listen in, I could hear the grunt of surprise from the Assistant Chief Inspector when he learned of the third tragedy. He promised to put a call through to Headquarters at once for Multooler and the other department agencies. But to this Colt demurred.

"Get Multooler," he sanctioned, "but keep the rest away for a while—until we know what we are looking for."

"Okay, chief. Do you want me down there?"

Colt reflected for a moment and then relayed his answer as he asked: "Is Mrs. Carewe awake?"

"Not yet."

"You are sure she is perfectly all right?"

"Sleeping sound as a dollar, sir, so are they all, the maid and the butler, each in a separate room, snoring in a different key."

Colt's brows were still furrowed.

"It sounds silly, I suppose," he reflected aloud, "but I am afraid to let you out of that house, Flynn. We've had three sudden deaths since we came into this case—"

"I'll stick on the job until I hear from you."

"All right."

As he hung up the receiver, Colt turned again to the private office where lay the body of Doctor Baldwin. Then he began his slow, meticulous search. At first glance, he found nothing extraordinary. The office was like the ordinary consultation room of any successful physician in a modern building. There was neither taste nor distinction in its equipment. It was all as utilitarian and efficient as any unimaginative office supply firm could make it, with sectional bookcases, steel waste basket, and a steel desk.

The only incongruous note in all the dull, twentieth-century stream-line atmosphere of the place was the distorted question mark of a body twisted and dead on the floor.

What had happened to Baldwin? The manner of his taking off would not give me any rest. Again and again the riddle broke across my mind like dark waves spilling on a beach.

Marshall had said that Doctor Baldwin was alone in the office, when the detective, playing drunk, had walked in. In spite of his faults, Marshall was a faithful and accurate observer, yet even with faithful and accurate observation, could we believe his report? Had not Colt himself faithfully and accurately observed all the possible hiding-places in Loia's pent-house? Yet with guards at all the entrances, Death had got by unseen, had swept through unnoticed and left its beautiful victims contorted on the floor. And the agent, the instrumentality of Death, had got away too, under the noses of all of our observation and accuracy. Only in Baldwin's case had we found the dead scorpion. Was it not possible, then, that unknown to Marshall and unknown to Doctor Baldwin, someone had hidden in these rooms also, waiting to turn Death loose—loose out of its box—out of that container which Colt had said must have been used?

Or was it the box which the small dark man had given to Baldwin? Had it concealed the scorpion? Had Baldwin been the victim of an accident or of a trick? Or had he deliberately let it loose?

These and a dozen other questions filled my mind as I watched Thatcher Colt begin his investigation into the third death of this baffling series. Perhaps the same questions filled the chief's mind too but if so, he did not, at that time, act upon them. His interests were following a different path altogether, some unknown path the chart to which he kept to himself. I stood, my back against the closed door, while Thatcher Colt knelt again beside the body.

First he began a deliberate search of the pockets. The doctor was still in his dinner jacket and only a hasty search was necessary. As a result, Thatcher Colt turned over to me a silver cigarette case engraved with the initials, "H. B." a box of matches, theater ticket stubs from the Hudson Theater, seats J 1 and 3, right, some loose silver, a ring of keys and a small leather pocketbook containing $300, in bank notes.

I took charge of all of this miscellaneous with the exception of the set of keys, which Colt examined with curiosity. Most of them were not difficult to identify—keys for the ignition and door of an automobile, keys to a flat safety deposit box, a flat brass key, evidently to the front door of an apartment and larger ones of the same pattern which Colt demonstrated belonged to the office. There remained one key which Colt isolated from the others, and held aloft between his thumb and forefinger, studying the irregular pattern of its shank with intensified interest. A grim smile fluttered over his strong lips and vanished, as he said:

"I'll keep this myself, Tony. You can have it later."

Then thrusting the ring jingling into his own pocket he resumed his search, beginning methodically with the top of the desk, and working down the right-hand stack of drawers and up the left.

Here again we started on what seemed a dreary unpromising search. With that worship of the fashion so characteristic of business and professional Americans, the top of Doctor Baldwin's desk was scrupulously bare. All the tools for using a desk were there: pen and ink-well, prescription pad and blotter, but that was all. The desk was a vast expanse of leather over stretched away from the empty chair like a desert.

In the top drawer at the right there was the same neatness: drinking glass, a towel, a piece of soap in a box, and a supply of clean handkerchiefs. The second drawer was entirely empty. The third was a much deeper drawer with a false front that would make one believe there were two instead of one. It contained three unopened boxes of cigars, no doubt Christmas presents from grateful patients.

As I made an inventory in my notebook, I asked myself if any thing less personal could be imagined. A man's desk is his most intimate article of furniture, close to him than a cradle to a baby. Yet Doctor Baldwin had seemed to leave not the slightest trace of his individuality upon his magnificent desk.

Starving for Thirty Days One Way to Treat Colitis

Many Laymen Mistake Some Other Simple Ailment for This Malady, Which Is Really Serious, and Which Requires Change of Diet and Habits.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MANY medical words are seized upon by laymen and frequently misused. For example, the word "colitis" is often used with a mistaken notion of its meaning and applied to mild and rather vague intestinal disorders.

Many a person thinks he is suffering from colitis when in reality the ailment is something of a different nature. I warn you that real colitis is something serious when neglected. It is an inflammation of the colon, the large intestine, caused by an infection.

Bacteria are always found in the large intestine, and when the tissues become irritated as a result of accumulated toxins or poisons, the bacteria increase in number. Then the mucous membrane or lining of the bowel is still more irritated.

Though worry, fatigue or severe emotional excitement may produce an attack of colitis, it is usually attributed to a faulty diet. When the diet is lacking in the natural foods and consists of large quantities of starch, sugar and meat, the number of intestinal bacteria is greatly increased, and the amount of poisons liberated by these bacteria is too great to be properly handled by the intestine.

The patient notices that his eliminations contain mucus and blood. These are the characteristic signs of colitis. The attacks sometimes come on in paroxysms. Abdominal tenderness and discomfort may be present or absent.

This disease is often complicated

by other abdominal disturbances, such as chronic gall bladder disease, chronic appendicitis, or ulcers of the stomach or intestine. In these cases, the pain and discomfort are severe and varied in character.

Drugs and other methods of treatment are of little value in colitis. The most important thing to do is to correct the diet and manner of living.

Recent investigation shows that primitives who live outdoors and eat only natural foods never suffer from colitis, appendicitis, ulcers or gallstones. It has been noted, too, that cancer of these organs is rarely encountered in these people.

The diet should contain some foods that leave a residue in the intestine. These are, mainly, vegetables, cereals and fruits.

Some institutions caring for colitis patients recommend a thirty-day "starvation diet." During this period water flavored with fruit juices is considered of chief importance. Tea, or water in which vegetables have been boiled, also is permitted. A moderate amount of exercise, massage and daily enemas are given.

If you are suffering from colitis, never take a strong laxative. This is merely adding insult to injury. The bowel should be cleansed daily by warm irrigations, for which water heated to 110 or 115 degrees should be used, but not more than a pint at a time. Add one half teaspoonful of salt to every pint of water used and after using the first pint let it escape before a second pint is used. Continue this until the returned fluid is clear. This treatment should be given daily.

All colitis patients should be under the personal care of a physician, for this ailment if neglected is difficult to cure. Some authorities believe that chronic rheumatism, intestinal cancer and other disorders of the intestines are caused by neglected colitis.

The Daily Horoscope

Thursday, Sept. 29, 1932

Fairly good aspects operate until four o'clock and after this time according to astrology, one should be careful not to act too suddenly; the tendency should be to deal with others in a moderate, deliberate and discriminative way.

The real early hours of today are especially good for making new plans, writing love letters and making resolutions.

After this run of the stars, the latter part of the morning hours, should be auspicious and may be best devoted to unusual pursuits.

Roosevelt Carrying Ohio In Digest's Straw Poll

Roosevelt gains a slight lead over Hoover in the second week's returns from eleven States in The Literary Digest's 20,000,000-ballot Presidential "straw" poll, according to returns in to-morrow's issue of the magazine.

Roosevelt has 102,185 votes, or 46.03 per cent., and Hoover has 100,323, or 45.18 per cent. of the total of 222,014 ballots received and tabulated.

The other 8.79 per cent of the votes are divided among the minor candidates — Thomas, Reynolds, Coxey, Upshaw and Foster — with Norman Thomas leading his nearest competitor of these by over 10 to 1.

In the eleven States reported Hoover is ahead of his rival in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York while Roosevelt leads in California, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

On the basis of an electoral college division this would give Hoover 93 votes to Roosevelt's 135.

The significant feature of the poll is that nearly 40 per cent of Roosevelt's strength is coming from former Republican voters as against nearly 45 per cent from Democrats while Hoover is gaining only slightly over 6 per cent of his votes from erstwhile Democrats and 80 per cent from Republican adherents, according to an analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1928".

On the basis of the current returns each of these political rivals is carrying his opponent's home State. Roosevelt is leading in California with 63.08 per cent of the State's total while Hoover leads Roosevelt in New York with 47.22 per cent of the State's vote, as against Roosevelt 43.46 per cent.

Roosevelt continues to lead Hoover in Pennsylvania by a 10 per cent margin, gaining over 46 per cent of his strength here from Republican voters at the last quadrennial election.

The returns from Maine show an opposite trend from the recent gubernatorial election there. Hoover is carrying the State by a percentage of 55.15 to Roosevelt's 40.44 although Roosevelt is drawing more of his votes from Republican ranks than he is from Democratic.

Hoover leads in Massachusetts by the comfortable margin of 55.27 to 34.73 per cent over his opponent and the President is also ahead in Connecticut by practically the same ratio.

OHIO DEMOCRATIC

Ohio gives Roosevelt a clear majority of the State's vote with the President trailing with 42.12 per cent of the total tabulated so far. In Illinois and Indiana, the Democratic candidate also has a majority while his Republican rival is polling 43.96 per cent and 44.17 per cent respectively in these States.

Similar to last week's returns, in none of the eleven States reporting is Roosevelt shown obtaining less from the Republican columns while Hoover does not obtain more than 8 per cent of his current votes from Democratic partisans of four years ago.

A State by State tabulation, which The Literary Digest cautions may be far from indicative of the final result, shows California voting 4,119, Roosevelt 7,985; Connecticut Hoover 5,441, Roosevelt 3,379; Illinois: Hoover 2,601, Roosevelt 3,068; Indiana: Hoover, 3,399, Roosevelt 3,951; Maine, Hoover 1,690, Roosevelt 1,239; Massachusetts, Hoover 6,847, Roosevelt 4,241; New Jersey: Hoover 16,481, Roosevelt 14,188; New York, Hoover 34,229, Roosevelt 31,493; Ohio Hoover 4,803, Roosevelt 5,768; Pennsylvania, Hoover 17,441, Roosevelt 21,832; and West Virginia: Hoover 3,322, Roosevelt 5,039.

One of the obligations of modern citizenship. No matter whether you live in city, town or country, your fellowship with journalism is the same, one of the responsibilities of every one hundred per cent progressive person. The newspaper is a true community builder, its editor a practical optimist. When you loyally pay your newspaper subscription in advance, you thereby add to the life-blood of your community.'"

"Is a local newspaper simply another business, operating to make money for the publisher, or is it an asset to the community? The answer to the question depends on the publisher of the paper and loyal community support, and I am glad that only in a few instances are local newspapers simply selfish commercial institutions.

"If the merchants of every city understood this and turned all their advertising and printing patronage to the newspapers, they would be helping make a better town, they would be bringing more business to themselves and would be cooperating from every business standpoint. Roosevelt Carrying Ohio In Digest's Straw Poll

Roosevelt gains a slight lead over Hoover in the second week's returns from eleven States in The Literary Digest's 20,000,000-ballot Presidential "straw" poll, according to returns in to-morrow's issue of the magazine.

Roosevelt has 102,185 votes, or 46.03 per cent, and Hoover has 100,323, or 45.18 per cent, of the total of 222,014 ballots received and tabulated.

The other 8.79 per cent of the votes are divided among the minor candidates — Thomas, Reynolds, Coxey, Upshaw and Foster—with Norman Thomas leading his nearest competitor of these by over 10 to 1.

In the eleven States reported Hoover is ahead of his rival in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York while Roosevelt leads in California, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

On the basis of an electoral college division this would give Hoover 93 votes to Roosevelt's 135.

The significant feature of the poll is that nearly 40 per cent of Roosevelt's strength is coming from former Republican voters as against nearly 45 per cent from Democrats while Hoover is gaining only slightly over 6 per cent of his votes from erstwhile Democrats and 80 per cent from Republican adherents, according to an analysis of "how the same voters voted in 1928".

On the basis of the current returns each of these political rivals is carrying his opponent's home State. Roosevelt is leading in California with 63.08 per cent of the State's total while Hoover leads Roosevelt in New York with 47.22 per cent of the State's vote, as against Roosevelt 43.46 per cent.

Roosevelt continues to lead Hoover in Pennsylvania by a 10 per cent margin, gaining over 46 per cent of his strength here from Republican voters at the last quadrennial election.

The returns from Maine show an opposite trend from the recent gubernatorial election there. Hoover is carrying the State by a percentage of 55.15 to Roosevelt's 40.44 altho Roosevelt is drawing more of his votes from Republican ranks than he is from Democrats.

Hoover leads in Massachusetts by the comfortable margin of 55.27 to 34.26 per cent over his opponent and the President is also ahead in Connecticut by practically the same ratio.

OHIO GIVES DEMOCRATIC

Ohio gives Roosevelt a clear majority of the State's vote with the President trailing with 42.12 per cent of the total tabulated so far. In Illinois and Indiana, the Democratic candidate also has a majority while his Republican rival is polling 43.86 per cent and 44.17 per cent respectively in these States.

Similar to last week's returns, in none of the eleven States reporting is Roosevelt shown obtaining less from the Republican columns while Hoover does not obtain more than 8 per cent of his current votes from Democratic partisans of four years ago.

A State by State tabulation, which The Literary Digest cautions may be far from indicative of the final result, shows California voting 4,118, Roosevelt 7,985; Connecticut: Hoover 5,441, Roosevelt 3,379; Illinois: Hoover 2,601, Roosevelt 3,068; Indiana: Hoover 3,389, Roosevelt 3,951; Maine: Hoover 1,690, Roosevelt 1,239; Massachusetts: Hoover 6,847, Roosevelt 4,244; New Jersey: Hoover 16,431, Roosevelt 14,188; New York: Hoover 34,229, Roosevelt 31,493; Ohio: Hoover 4,803, Roosevelt 5,766; Pennsylvania: Hoover 17,441, Roosevelt 21,833; and West Virginia: Hoover 3,322, Roosevelt 5,039.

SOLOMONS NOT SO WISE

CHICAGO—The name of Samuel Solomon must be "jinxed." Within 24 hours, two Samuel Solomons, no relation, were robbed in separate holdups. One of the Solomons was relieved of $17 while returning from the home of his sweetheart. The other victim, owner of a drug store, was robbed of $491 in postal money orders.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
by Edson R. Waite
Shawnee, Okla.

William Southern, Jr., publisher of The Independence (Mo.) Examiner, says:

"In a recent official bulletin, Jewell Mayes, secretary of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, included the following paragraphs: 'Supporting your home newspaper is a combination of duty and privilege, one of the obligations of modern citizenship. No matter whether you live in city, town or country, your fellowship with journalism is the same, one of the responsibilities of every one hundred per cent progressive person. The newspaper is a true community builder, its editor a practical optimist. When you loyally pay your newspaper subscription in advance, you thereby add to the life-blood of your community.'"

"Is a local newspaper simply another business, operating to make money for the publisher, or is it an asset to the community?"

"The answer to the question depends on the publisher of the paper and loyal community support, and I am glad that only in a few instances are local newspapers simply selfish commercial institutions."

"If the merchants of every city understood this and turned all their advertising and printing patronage to the newspapers, they would be helping make a better town, they would be bringing more business to themselves and would be cooperating from every business standpoint. Every dollar the merchant spends in handbills or in free papers is just that much money which would help to make a better paper, a paper better able to fight the battles of

This Woman Lost 64 Pounds of Fat

Mrs. H. Price of Woodside, L. I. writes: "A year ago I weighed 190 lbs. I started to take Kruschen and now I weigh 126 and never felt better in my life and what's more, I look more like 20 yrs. old than the mother of 2 children, one of 19 and the other 18. My friends say it's marvelous the way I reduced."

To lose fat SAFELY and HARMLESSLY, take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—a bottle that lasts 6 weeks costs but a trifle—but don't take chances—be sure it's Kruschen. If not joyfully satisfied after the first bottle—money back.

NEW OFFICERS PRESIDE AT U. B. AID MEETING

The newly elected officers of the Ladies Aid Society of the United Brethren church presided at their first meeting, Thursday afternoon, when the monthly session of the society was held in the Community house with 44 members and six visitors in attendance.

The session opened with a song service. Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Abbie Gusman, and Rev. T. C. Harper led in prayer. The new officers conducting the business transactions were Mrs. Ellen Hegele, president, Mrs. Talmer Wise recording secretary and Mrs. Hazel Betts, financial secretary. An interesting program under the chairmanship of Mrs. Bessie Pierce was enjoyed. A song, "Blessed Quietness" was sung by the entire group; a recitation, "Peace Prayer" by Mrs. C. O. Kerns was followed by a vocal solo, "Jesus Will" by Mrs. Maggie Morris. A poem, "I Want My Flowers Now," read by Mrs. Pierce, concluded the program.

Refreshments were served during a social hour by the October committee composed of Mrs. Nellie Richards, chairman, Mrs. Sam Hawks, Mrs. Mary Speakman, Mrs. Ralph Long, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters and Mrs. Maud Noggle.

Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood will be chairman of the program committee for the next meeting to be held the last Thursday in November.

KINGSTON

The Rice-Steeley families first annual reunion was held on Sunday, September 25, 1932, at Logan, Elm Park, with a bounteous basket dinner at 1 o'clock. This splendid affair was arranged by the only living grand-daughters of Margaret and William Rice, Mrs. Mary Watson of Columbus, and Mrs. James Fouch of Kingston.

Among those present were—Mrs. Amanda Baum and son, Lem Baum, Judge Charles Leach, Mrs. Leach and family, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wanamaker, Mrs. Mary Watson and family, Mrs. A. L. Grooms, and family of Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Haswell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Noggle, Mr. and Mrs. George Steeley, Isiah Thomas, Mrs. Fannie Rice and Ned Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sampson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Denny D. Shelby, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Young, Willis Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Morris of Circleville, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rice and daughter, Edna and Mrs. Ruth Woolver and son, Allen of Meade, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Steeley of Newark, Mr. and Mrs. Elgar Mettler of Laureville, Mr. and Mrs. E. Sims and grand-children Betty and Bobby Carmean, Mrs. Hattie Huber, David B. Fouch, Mr. and Mrs. James Fouch and family and Rev. N. C. Stump of Kingston, also present and returned thanks for the bountiful dinner and also read the life history of James Rice, for which the committee wishes to thank him. The committee is sorry to state that the life history of Maria Steeley had not as yet been found and hope to have the complete life history of Steeleys and Rices for next year. There were sixty descendants—Rice and Steeley—present. The committee hopes to have one hundred twenty present at the next Annual Reunion. While in conversation with relatives the committee learned that a number of relatives had not been notified and is sorry but their names are on the list for next year.

William E. Collins, candidate for sheriff of Ross-co, was one of the number to be rewarded the military decoration of the Order of the Purple Heart at Red Bird stadium in Columbus on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Collins served in Company H, 166th infantry and was wounded July 15, 1918, in the Champagne sector. Mr. Collins was present at the meeting held in the auditorium on Tuesday afternoon. He was introduced to the Kingston audience and made a short talk.

The Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church will hold an all day meeting, with a picnic dinner at the noon hour at the home of Mrs. Austin Wilson on Thursday, Oct. 6. Ways will be arranged for all members wishing to attend. Any one having no way to go will please call Mrs. Carrie Holderman or Mrs. W. E. Sheridan.

The Kingston Garden Club will hold its regular meeting on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Oct. 3, at the home of the new president, Mrs. J. P. Gardner. A good attendance is desired.

The annual chicken dinner given by the Presbyterian Guild will be held on Wednesday evening, Oct. 12. The time of serving and the menu will be announced later.

Remember the Y. M. C. A. meeting to be held on Thursday evening, Sept. 25, in the high school auditorium at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Ephraim Wilson and Reuben May attended a fine meeting of the state workers for Raleigh and Company held at the Warner House in Chillicothe on Tuesday with a banquet in the evening.

Mrs. Austin Wilson and Mrs. Walter Wright were visitors in Columbus on Tuesday.

HEIR SHOOT

fired point blank the shot struck Lewis in the chest and heart.

Lewis, who was Republican candidate for County Commissioner at the last election, was sued for divorce by Mrs. Lewis recently, according to Sheriff Ray Cox, who investigated the shooting. The couple has been living apart.

Sheriff Cox declared today that young Ray would not be placed under arrest inasmuch as he apparently acted in self defense.

Following the tragedy last night the boy and his mother were taken to the house of an aunt, Mrs. Lem Bethel of Allensville.

Young Ray became the heir of a $50,000 farm estate two years ago following the death of Rene Bay, wealthy Vinton-co farmer, who had adopted the boy.

Other heirs contested the will but the boy won the case and Lewis was appointed his guardian.

TUFTS FUNERAL

Funeral services will be Saturday at 10 a. m. at Mt. Carmel church for Mrs. Myrtle May Tufts, 40, of Lockbourne, who died in White Cross hospital. Interment will be in the adjoining cemetery.

NEW OFFICERS PRESIDE AT U. B. AID MEETING

The newly elected officers of the Ladies Aid Society of the United Brethren church presided at their first meeting, Thursday afternoon, when the monthly session of the society was held in the Community house with 44 members and six visitors in attendance.

The session opened with a song service. Devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Abbie Gusman, and Rev. T. C. Harper led in prayer. The new officers conducting the business transactions were Mrs. Ellen Hegele, president, Mrs. Talmer Wise recording secretary and Mrs. Hazel Betts, financial secretary.

An interesting program under the chairmanship of Mrs. Bessie Pierce was enjoyed. A song, "Blessed Quietness" was sung by the entire group; a recitation, "Peace Prayer" by Mrs. C. O. Kerns was followed by a vocal solo, "Jesus Will" by Mrs. Maggie Morris. A poem, "I Want My Flowers Now," read by Mrs. Pierce, concluded the program.

Refreshments were served during a social hour by the October committee composed of Mrs. Nellie Richards, chairman, Mrs. Sam Hawks, Mrs. Mary Speakman, Mrs. Ralph Long, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters and Mrs. Maud Noggle.

Mrs. M. C. Kirkwood will be chairman of the program committee for the next meeting to be held the last Thursday in November.

Again Ravaged by Disastrous Hurricane

A scene on the San Juan, Puerto Rico, waterfront following the hurricane of 1928 in which hundreds died and thousands of dollars worth of damage was done to property. In the background is the historic Morro Castle. Similar scenes are again the rule on the island, following the disastrous 120-mile-an-hour gale that spread death and destruction. Besides the list of many dead, millions of dollars worth of crops and property have been totally ruined. Governor General James R. Beverley (inset) is head of the emergency committee that is aiding the injured and homeless. Relief is being rushed by every available means.

fired point blank. The shot struck Lewis in the chest and heart. Lewis, who was Republican candidate for County Commissioner at the last election, was sued for divorce by Mrs. Lewis recently, according to Sheriff Ray Cox, who investigated the shooting. The couple has been living apart.

Sheriff Cox declared today that young Ray would not be placed under arrest inasmuch as he apparently acted in self defense.

Following the tragedy last night the boy and his mother were taken to the house of an aunt, Mrs. Lem Bethel of Allensville.

Young Bay became the heir of a $50,000 farm estate two years ago following the death of Rene Bay, wealthy Vinton-co farmer, who had adopted the boy.

Other heirs contested the will but the boy won the case and Lewis was appointed his guardian.
